"Hoe YOUR OWN ROW."

I think there are some maxims
Under the sun,
Scarce worth preservation;
But here, boys, is one
So sound and so simple,
"Tis worth while to know;
And all in the single line,
Hoe your own row!

If you want to have riches,
And want to have friends,
Don't trample the means down,
And look for the ends;
But always remember
Wherever you go,
The wisdom of practicing,
Hoe your own row!

Don't just sit and pray,
For increase of your store,
But work; who will help himself,
Heaven helps more,
The weeds while you're sleeping
Will come up and grow,
But if you would have the
Full ear you must hoe!

Nor will it do only
To hoe out the weeds,
You must make your ground mellow
And put in the seeds;
And when the young blade
Pushes through, you must know
There is nothing will strengthen
Its growth like the hoe!

There is no use of saying
What will be, will be;
Once try it, my lack-brain
And see what you'll see!
Just as well potatoes,
And few in a row;
You'd better take hold then,
And honestly hoe.

A good many workers
I've known in my time—
Some builders of houses,
Some builders of rhyme;
And that they were prospered
Were prospered, I know,
By the intent and meaning of
Hoe your own row.

I've known, too, a good many
Idlers, who said,
"I've a right to my living;
The world owes me bread."
A right, lazy lubber!
A thousand times not!
'Tis his, and his only,
Who hoes his own row.

MISS CHESTER'S DESTINY.

BY REBECCA FORBES.

Fanny Chester was a flirt. Every one, herself included, acknowledged that.

Her old guardian, Judge Spafford, watched her perfect recklessness of conduct with an anxious eye. Having no children of his own, he had taken the little orphan, left to his care, into his heart as well as his home. She had proved affectionate, good, everything to satisfy him, save the horrible propensity of flirting, which she had evinced almost from her "baby days."

Every specimen of masculine humanity that fell in her way had to bow to her before she let him go; she laughed maliciously at each newly wounded heart.

In vain the judge remonstrated with her: his words had no effect whatever. "If men are so weak," she would respond with a wicked shake of her head, "I am not responsible. They must bear the consequences."

The judge groaned aloud. While she was young he had cherished the thought that she would become different when older. Now she had emerged into her twenties, and she was decidedly more dangerous than before.

"Do you ever intend to marry?" the judge questioned her one day.

She looked at him gravely for a moment. "No," she responded frankly. "My intentions are to remain always as now. I have wealth, beauty, youth, and an affectionate guardian; what more do I require?"

"At present, nothing," he returned. "But the day may come when all those may be swept away. Your wealth may disappear, your beauty fade, your youth be but a remembrance of the past, and I your guardian be smouldering in the dust. In that day, what resource would you have left?"

She smiled and then laughed outright. "What a doleful picture you have conjured up," she ejaculated. "If ever such an extremity come I will teach, or sew, or do something to support myself. Anything, guardie, would be preferable to marrying one of the conceited dandies of the nineteenth century."

You are too hard," the judge rejoined quickly. "There are some men left yet. All are not dreaming popinjays. For instance look at John Wallace."

The beauty curled her lips disdainfully. John Wallace to be mentioned to her! John Wallace, a poor orphan that had entered her guardians as an office boy, but who had studied and worked himself up until he was admitted to the bar, was too much beneath her in the social rank of society for even his name to be tolerated.

"John Wallace?" she reiterated. "Why guardie, I am surprised you refer to a man like him. One without blood or lineage; one who knows not but even his very existence may be an inextinguishable disgrace!"

The judge looked her full in the face. He noticed that a deeper flush than he had ever seen overspread her brow before, she rose at the mention of the briefless lawyer's name. What did it mean? Could she be interested in him? No: he believed it not.

He knew the proud beauty merely gave a slight inclination of her head in recognition of him when they chanced to meet. Also, she was proud of the blood in her veins, and looked down upon those who could not trace their past as inferior.

"You have too aristocratic ideas for republican America," he responded, and then he longed to tell her something of her family, of which she had lived in blissful ignorance.

From this time forth she seemed to flirt even more desperately than before. If she accidentally met John Wallace, when he came to the house to consult the judge, she treated him with supercilious contempt. The judge flushed with shame.

"Fanny, dear," he ventured to say to her, after she had been more than unusually frigid in her conduct, "you wound me. What pleasure can you find in humiliating John Wallace as you have done? Why not treat him in a lady-like and polite manner?"

"Because his airs annoy me," was her reply. "He bears everything with that cold, calm unimpassioned bearing that seems to say: 'I am as good as you, and do not heed you,' which I consider insufferable insolence in an inferior."

The judge sighed, but made no comments.

Now years came at last and Fanny was preparing for a ball. She looked into the mirrors that reflected her with evident satisfaction, and then swept from her apartments down to the judge's library to ask his opinion of her toilet. Voices within arrested her attention.

"I wish to address Miss Chester, and first ask your consent," she heard some one say.

"The puppy!" she ejaculated, as she recognized his voice as that of a young Englishman with whom she had been recently made acquainted.

The judge hesitated for a moment.

"Miss Chester must please herself," he returned; "but as you have mentioned it to me I feel it my duty bound to correct you in regard to a popular belief. Miss Chester's fortune, as well as my own, has been lost through an unfortunate speculation."

The fellow fairly gasped.

"Is it really so?" he asked.

The judge bowed his head.

"But of course that will make no difference with you," he suggested.

"As you wish to seek my ward through no mercenary motives."

The dandy winced.

"Pardon me," he stammered. "I have labored under a mistake. Not he added, "that I wished to seek her wealth, but now that she is reduced, she might be influenced to follow her mother's profession—an actress!"

The judge rose to his feet.

"Be so kind as to leave my house sir," he commanded and the fellow slunk out.

For a moment Fanny stood transfixed. The one calamity—that of losing her wealth—would have appalled her, but the other—that her mother could ever have been an actress chilled her blood! She rushed into the library.

"Tell me—is it so?" she questioned agonizingly.

"Well," he asked, hoarsely, her white face appealing to his heart.

"My mother?"

"Yes," he said slowly. "Child, I did not know that you were there."

She heard him not. She stood and stared, and at last threw herself on his fatherly breast.

"Do not think that I weep for my wealth," she said; "I can stand that but the other humiliation; we—I was so proud of my good family."

She took off her queenly robes, and remained at home.

The intelligence of the judge's failure flew through the city as if on wings of fire, and the friends who had so much admired the "rich Miss Chester," dropped off one by one.

The judge watched how bravely she bore her reverses, and sighed.

Fanny insisted on the programme which she had marked out for herself before she dreamed of ever being reduced.

"I will not be a burden to you," she replied to the judge when he pleaded with her to abandon her scheme.

The went bravely to the trustees of the school where she had been educated, and laid her case before them. They listened attentively. They believed there must be sterling qualities within the girl, that she could so resolutely face her fate. They gave her the position she desired.

The night before she was to commence her labors, the judge called her to him.

"Fanny," he said "in just six months from this day I was to give up your property to your own care and be your guardian no longer. What can you think of the way I have fulfilled my trust."

She threw her arms around his neck.

"Do not think of my loss guardie," she exclaimed. You have been a father, a true good father to me. I have been a butterfly of fashion, but now you shall see that I can be something else."

He pressed her convulsively to his breast.

"God will reward you," he said; "I knew that I was not mistaken in my estimation of your nobility of character."

For months she filled her position as teacher honorably, and declared herself happier than she had ever been in her life before.

John Wallace visited the old judge, in their humble lodgings, much more frequently than he had done in their more prosperous days.

Fanny was ever pleased and seemed anxious to erase the rudeness of the past from his mind. Their intimacy ripened into friendship, and from friendship into love.

The judge looked on with intense satisfaction.

The anniversary of Fanny Chester's twenty-first birthday came, the day on which he was to yield up his control of her.

"I wish you to take a ride with me, Fanny," he observed, and she prepared to do so.

They drove to the old residence.

"What does this mean?" she asked with flushed cheeks.

"I mean that I have taken fancy to visit our old house," he ventured. "You knew it had only been occupied by the servants since we left it."

She made no response. She followed him up the gravelled walk, and up the high brownstone steps into the house. He led her into the library, and offered her a chair.

He then took a roll of papers and laid them before her.

"This is your birthday my dear," he said, softly, "and I render up to you all that was entrusted to my care. I knew you was noble and good, and had a strength of character of which you yourself was unware of. Loving you as I did, and do, it pained my heart to see you that shallow creature—a woman of fashion—a flirt. I know you knew not your own heart, judged your friends wrong. In all things else, but this one, you was perfect, and before I could relinquish all claims to you I wished to open your eyes. My poverty, your loss was but a pretence. Can you forgive me?"

She sprang from her chair. She buried her face in his bosom and wept.

"I thank you," she said, when her emotion subsided sufficiently to allow her to speak. "You have taught me a lesson which I will never forget. I will never again be the useless, foolish creature of the past."

The judge was satisfied, and he wiped a suspicious moisture from his eyes.

"And John Wallace?" she asked with a questioning look.

"Believed as you did, my dear," she made no comments.

The circle in which she had reigned supreme was surprised to hear that her poverty was but a freak to test their friendship, and many of the heartless dandies cursed their stupidity in giving her up so easily. They met her in society again, but they knew that their chances for the hand of the heiress were lost forever.

A month past, and John Wallace had not called. He sent his congratulations to the judge and "Miss Chester." But that was all.

Fanny wrote him a note.

"Mr. Wallace will confer a favor on me by calling," she said. "I find it much harder to be abandoned by a true friend when in prosperity than by a heartless one during reverses."

John Wallace obeyed the summons.

Six months later Fanny Chester had emerged into Fanny Wallace.

Mr. Wallace is now one of our eminent and successful lawyers—a noble example of what a poor friendless boy, if ambitious and industrious, can accomplish and become.

The judge lives yet.

Kitty Glenn stood at the pantry with the sleeve of her gingham dress rolled up to her shoulder, displaying the plump, white arm, her hands playing bopeep in the heap of flour before her, and her bright eyes peeping out through the green vines which shadowed the window to the handsome specimen of humanity which stood upon the lawn, busily talking with Bob Glenn.

Dick Arnot was her idea of manliness and perfection, and ever since he had "booned" her home from singing school on the preceding winter; she had kept a warm place in her loving heart, and loved to please him.

Every time she wound her shining curls around her white fingers, it was with a thought that it would please Dick, and whenever she donned her pretty muslin dress it was with pleasure, because once she had heard him express his admiration of them.

All at once, that bright morning, Dick left Kitty's brother and walked straight up to the vine-wreathed window, and gazed in upon the pretty picture.

"Well, Kitty, I am here to say good-bye. I am going away from home."

There was a great deal of real pain in her voice, and all the sunshine left her face.

"Yes, I am going to the city to seek my fortune. Are you sorry?"

"Yes, Dick, I am sorry."

"Well, Kitty, I am going to write to you; will you answer my letter?"

"Yes, indeed."

"And I shall expect a true answer to the questions I ask."

She blushed and laughed.

"Why, I always tell the truth, Dick."

"Yes, yes, I know, but—well, but—"

"But what?"

"Never mind, little one, I'll tell it all in my letter. Good-bye; Kitty."

And away he ran, leaving her confused and unhappy at the window.

Poor little girl! Her heart wandered out to the great handsome fellow crossing the bridge at the foot of the long hill, and she forgot her bisonit, and moulded them till they were hard as India rubber.

Mrs. Glenn came in and gave her a smart pinch for her forgetfulness, and when she returned to the kitchen she shook her head and believed that Katherine's wits were sartin' leaving her.

"Leave the gal alone, mother!" said Farmer Glenn, who had come up from the field for the lunch box and his root beer. "She's no different from the gals of old times. I saw that young Arnot goin' down the hill, and I guess he carried her wits with him. Hey, Kitty?"

"Nonsense!"

"Never mind, pet, he's a likely chap and may make a great man."

Ah, how anxious Kitty waited for the letter which was to bring the sweet story from Dick, and poor Bob was dispatched every day for the mail, rain or shine.

One week, two weeks passed, and yet no letter, and the light heart grew heavy and sad.

"Why didn't he write?"

One night Bob brought a big bundle of letters and papers, and as he tossed them into her lap, he said:

"There, sis, I hope you'll find that letter that you have so looked for among the pile. I hate to see you sorry. I do believe you expect to hear from Dick Arnot! If it's so he had better write; if he don't, I'll tan his hide for him."

"Don't Bob!" pleaded Kitty, anxiously looking for the wished for missive.

It was all in vain.

There was a letter from a city cousin who wanted to make a visit to Glenn farm. The was another from Uncle Will, all business and politics, and messages to her father, and one from an old school friend, but none from Dick. She tossed them all into the little table drawer, and went up to her room and cried until her bright eyes were dim and heavy.

Of course she did not care for him. Oh, no! But he had no occasion to promise a letter, and beg her to write to him. The wretch!

Well, it did not help the matter, and after three or four weeks of eager watching she gave it up, and buried her love and hope deep down in her heart, and tried hard to forget him.

It was no easy task, for Kitty's life was quiet and uneventful, and there was nothing to call her mind from the old happiness of which she had so fondly dreamed.

When the year ended Dick Arnot returned.

Kitty saw him at church and received his formal bow with heightened color and beating heart. He passed close beside her and looked into her face with a bland smile, but never spoke a word.

Poor Kitty! It brought back the old trouble, and when she went home she sat down and cried as in the days when she watched for the promised letter.

He came one night, and met Kitty as she came up from the field with a basket filled with ripe strawberries upon her arm.

She saw him, and wished herself miles away; but there was no chance to avoid him, and she walked straight to the bars where he awaited her.

"Kitty, you are trying to avoid me, but as there are no other means of leaving the field unless you climb the fence of course you must pass me. Now, I am better natured than yourself. I do not entertain an unkindly feeling toward you for all your unkindness."

"My unkindness?"

"You never gave me one kind word in reply to the long letter I sent you so many months ago."

"Your letter! I never received it. I watched for it, Dick until I was tired; but it never came."

"But I sent it, Kitty, and watched for your reply until my heart grew sick. But as it never met your eyes I will tell you its contents. Will you listen?"

"Certainly."

"It was a long letter, but its whole import can be told in a few words. I only told you how dear you were to me, and asked you to wait until I came to claim you for my wife."

"O Dick!"

"What shall it be? Are you ready to reply?"

"Yes, I think so."

"And your reply is—"

"Yes."

He leaned over, kissed the bright face, and then dropped the bars for her to walk through, and together they walked up the lane to the house.

"Dick," called Bob, "has Kitty found her letter? I believe so, for she looked as she did when you stood talking at the window, last summer."

Yes, Kitty had found her letter, or its meaning, and all the vanished happiness stole back to her heart and lifted up her sweet face.

It was only a short time ago that Kitty in her cottage just across the way from father's, sat cutting the old worn out blue jacket, which Bob had gloried in for several years, into strips for a drawn rug, on the frame close by, and found in the lining a creased and soiled envelope. She turned it over and read "Miss Kitty Glenn, Harding, New Hampshire."

"Dear me! I wonder what this means!" she thought; and after she had turned it over several times she opened it.

There was the long-lost letter, in which Dick had told his love-story.

Kitty smiled.

"Well, it's just as well. It came out all right."

To Newspaper Sharps!

My half interest in the GAZETTE newspaper and Job office, together with my half interest in the "GAZETTE" building, is offered for sale on satisfactory terms. The material is all new, and the paper has a fair circulation which is continually increasing. The GAZETTE has been appointed the "legal paper" of the county for the next six years, and there is no other paper published in the county.

WHAT DOES IT MEAN.—We mentioned the fact last week of receiving a communication from San Francisco which was forwarded through generosity (?) of the Young Men's Christian Association. The letter was apparently overweight, and it was a wonder to us how it came through the mail with only one three cent postage stamp. We have received a letter from the writer of the communication referred to, who by the way, is a lady of unquestionable veracity, in which she says, "I put two three-cent postage stamps on the letter, (fearing it might be overweight) and dropped the letter into one of the U. S. Mail boxes which are so conveniently scattered through the City and how they became detached, or what the Young Men's Christian Association had to do with it, is a mystery to me."

This is a matter that the Postmaster of San Francisco or somebody else connected with the P. O. department should look into. Do parties connected with the Y. M. C. Association have access to the U. S. Mail boxes, so as to detach stamps and then paste their begging slips on the envelopes. There's something wrong somewhere and the matter needs investigating.

FAILED TO PASS.—The bill introduced in the Senate by Mr. Kincaid, authorizing the Supervisors of San Mateo and Santa Clara Counties to donate stock to the Southern Pacific Railroad, got smothered in the Assembly, and failed to become a law. We make this explanation for the information of several parties who have asked us whether the bill passed both branches of the Legislature.

SAUCY.—The San Jose Mercury and Patriot are getting off "sass" at each other nearly every day. The Mercury of last Wednesday in referring to a four line item in the Patriot of the previous evening says that the filthy dog that wrote it ought to be kicked out of the community.

BADLY PESTERED.—The San Luis Obispo Standard makes the following complaint: "Cats, dogs, and drunks make the night hideous in San Luis Obispo. We can get rid of the cats and dogs, but the latter animals deponent saith not."

MORE CIRCUS.—Leihy, Lake & Co's. Great Overland Circus and Menagerie, are advertised to exhibit in this town on next Thursday afternoon and evening, April 28th. This is said to be one of the best Circus companies ever exhibiting on this coast.

John Pejerano, a Peruvian, was found shockingly murdered at Salt Point, Sonoma county, a few days ago. No robbery was committed, and the affair is shrouded in mystery. He was found dead on the floor of his cabin, shot through the head.

The yield of the Grass Valley Eureka mine for the last quarter was $141,706.48 exclusive of the sulphurets, which will yield about $6,000, bringing up the average yield to $49,000 per month.

State Appropriation of Public Funds.—The Power to do so Questionable.

The increasing disposition of successive Legislatures to manifest their wonderful generosity by voting after other people's money to the various religious and benevolent institutions in this State, suggest the inquiry as to whether the thing is not being carried a little too far, besides which the question presents itself, whether the Legislature is not entirely exceeding, its power in appropriating money for any purpose whatever, except for defraying the ordinary and legitimate expense of carrying on the government. We take the ground that the Legislature has no authority or power to appropriate funds from the public treasury to any Orphan Asylum, Howard Benevolent Association, Ladies Relief Societies or other Associations of a similar character. From the fact that these are all organizations of a beneficial and charitable nature is no reason why the Legislature should take funds from the public treasury for their support, unless the Constitution gives that power.

While these appropriations were confined to the two Orphan Asylums in San Francisco—Catholic and Protestant, no one thought proper to question the propriety of such appropriations, but since every charitable Association from San Diego to Siskiyou, are coming in for a share of the charitable donations from the public treasury, we think it high time that the matter should be inquired into for the purpose of ascertaining whether there is not some limits to the powers of the Legislature as to the disposition of the public funds.

If there is none, then it is easy to see what the result will be—judging from the past. Some dozen or fifteen different associations in various portions of the State, were granted donations by the last Legislatures, which amounted in the aggregate to at least $50,000. These donations from the public treasury, will soon be expected to be made to every Young Men's Christian Association every Public Library, every Hibernian Benevolent Society and Odd Fellows Relief Committees, and in fact, there will be no end to institutions which will put in their claims for their share of the public funds. And why not; if there is no limit to the power of the Legislature over the matter of disbursing the public monies, then it is no stretch of imagination to suppose that such a state of things is not improvable. At every session of the Legislature new applicants put in their claims and they are granted as a matter of course, for the reason that Members are at a loss for an excuse for refusing to do by one institution as they have done for another.

The last Legislature went a step or two farther than any of its predecessors, and authorized an appropriation of $15,000 out of the San Francisco County Treasury, for the relief of the Free School of the Presentation Convent. What is to be understood by the term free-school of a convent, we do not exactly understand, and perhaps it is none of our special business, but to say the least, we think the tax-payers of the City of San Francisco have a right to protest against any such perversion of the public funds of the County. Col. Holt, the County Auditor, has refused to audit the claim, upon the grounds that all of the monies in the treasury belong to a specific fund, and that the money cannot be appropriated for objects not contemplated when the taxes were levied. We think Col. Holt is right—his head is clear on that point.

THE SUCCESSOR COMING.—General J. M. Scofield, has been assigned to the command of the Department of the Pacific, in the place of General Thomas, lately deceased. By the way, why will our contemporaries and everybody else persist in spelling Gen. Scofield's name wrong? It is true, that 'Scho' spells Sco, and so does 'Ash'a' spell Asia. The proper way to spell the General's name is without an h. This bit of information is not of any particular importance, but it is correct—such as it is.

AN EDITOR GOING.—J. J. Owen, editor of the San Jose Mercury, announces that he intends starting across the continent on the 8th of next month, and will in the mean time visit Salt Lake city and take a look at Mormonism at home.

ENLARGED.—The S. F. Chronicle comes to us enlarged and otherwise greatly improved in appearance. The Chronicle is irrepressible, and is bound to shine for some time—if not longer.

LOCATED.—The State Normal School is to be located across the Cayote to the east of San Jose. The site does not suit some of the San Jose people.

BLOSSOM ROCK.—Col. A. W. Von Smith the Engineer gives notice through the City papers that the grand explosion of Blossom Rock in the bay of San Francisco, will take place at half-past one o'clock this afternoon.

The Difference.

A Chinaman has been arrested in Oak and for an attempt to outrage a little white girl, whereupon the Oakland Transcript, a democratic paper, gives vent to its indignation after the following style:

"Let us have no more of this miserable god and morality doctrine, which would seek to extenuate crimes of the blackest die. Let us hear no more of the docility and good conduct of a race which produces such human monsters as Ah Long, who, if he had his deserts, would now be dangling at the end of a rope, an inviting meal for vultures. Let the law be visited on the wretch to the fullest extent. Let justice be done without fear, favor or affection. Fiat Justitie ruat cælum."

We have no apology to make for this Chinaman, for we are in favor of hanging him or any other man who is guilty of committing such an outrage, but when it is taken into consideration that there are not less than 80,000 Chinamen in California, and that such outrages as the one referred to above are of almost weekly occurrence in California, and that this is the first instance on record so far as we remember, in which a Chinaman has been guilty of this offence in this State—notwithstanding they are everywhere employed in families as cooks and house servants, it certainly is bad taste for the Transcript to denounce a "race which produces such monsters as Ah Long." What race did the monster belong to; who outraged and murdered little Maggie Ryan under the wharf in San Francisco? In fact, what race does every other brute belong to who has been guilty of like offences in this State? There is only one answer to these questions, and that is by saying that it is the white race, of which the Transcript editor as well as ourself claim to be a part and parcel. Just after reading the above from the Transcript, our eyes fell upon the following item in the Napa Register of April 16th, to which we call the attention of the Transcript and others who imagine that the Chinese are the only race which furnishes monsters:

"A Maggie Ryan Affair.—A fiend in human shape, went to the house of a Mr. Johnston in Mendocino, last week, and in his absence, violated the person of an Indian girl, and so abused her that she died within a week. The perpetrator of the outrage named Buchanan, was arrested, but there being no competent witnesses to testify against him, he was discharged. Judge Lynch ought to have been on hand, and put a quietus upon his repeating a like offense again. Hanging would be too good for such a wretch."

HOW IT WORKS.—Judge McKee of the 3d District Court, has appointed the Oakland Transcript a paper published away from the County seat, as the "official organ," for the County of Alameda, instead of the Gazette, which is published at the County seat. And probably with a view of rendering the "Act to protect litigants" still more obnoxious to the people, the same judge has selected the Pajaronian as the "official organ" of Santa Cruz County. When it is considered that there are two papers published in the town of Santa Cruz—either of which probably has three or four times the circulation of the Pajaronian, which is published at Watsonville twenty miles from Santa Cruz, the County seat, it is apparent to the most casual observer that Judge McKee is using the law for some other purpose than that of protecting litigants. If his object is to make the law odious he could not possibly do it more effectually than by pursuing the course he has taken. In this connection, we copy the following "metaphorical" comments by Owen of the San Jose Mercury:

"The Pajaronian published at Watsonville, a paper that supported McKee for the judgeship last Fall, has been appointed the 'official organ' for Santa Cruz County. While we congratulate Bro. Cummings on the 'fat take' that has fallen to his lot, we have a little curiosity to know how the people at the county seat, 'twenty miles away,' will take it. In our 'mind's eyes,' Horatio," we see Kooser's ghost of the Sentinel, tearing up and down the sandy beach muttering all sorts of "murder most foul." Borrowing "a metaphor from the animal kingdom, K. will undoubtedly thrust his horns into the zenith, paw up the dirt at a furious rate, do some responsible bellowing and rush snorting into the chapparel."

Two American ladies—Mrs. Terry and Mrs. Story—are teaching the Romans how to give parties. The Romans are dazzled. The old adage or story, 'When in Rome you must do as Rome does,' is slightly reversed by these un-Terry-fied American ladies. The Americans are enterprising and would like to see changes even in Rome, in a liberal way.

More Rich Mines Discovered.

In the Alta of last Wednesday, we noticed a correspondence from San Diego in regard to some rich and extensive gold and silver mines which have recently been discovered near the Apache pass, just over the line in New Mexico. The information of the Alta correspondent was obtained from ex-sheriff S. H. Bowman, of this county, who it seems, is one of the principal operators in the new mines and had just returned from the locality to San Diego. It appears that the mines are located about 650 miles from San Diego in a southeast direction and about 150 miles beyond Tucson and 40 miles from Ft. Bowie. The new district has been christened the "Virginia district" mining laws established, recorder, elected, etc., and at last accounts some 200 miners were at the mines. The location is in the very heart of the villainous Apaches, who are no respecters of persons or nationalities, but murder and plunder whenever an opportunity offers itself. Mr. Bowman says: "that although the reports that had reached him of the wealth and extent of the minerals found sounded too marvelous to seem worthy of credence, yet the half had not been told. He found here ledges which could be traced by the outcropping for a distance of from two to four miles, and varying in width from six to 80 feet, and these outcroppings consisting of quartz which seemed literally filled with gold, silver and copper."

Mr. Bowman brought about 100 pounds of rock from the various ledges which have been shipped to Messrs. Roberts & Harpending, of San Francisco. The Apache pass is in Arizona but near the boundary line of New Mexico, and consequently the new mines cannot be far from the boundary line of Arizona. It is no good country for a white man to go to—unless he is fully prepared with an iron-clad "top-knot."

THE BAND AT BELMONT.—The Redwood City Cornet Band visited the palatial residence of W. C. Ralston, Esq., at Belmont, on last Saturday evening and gave him the benefit of a serenade. Mr. Ralston gave the boys a cordial reception by tendering them the hospitalities of his mansion, besides champagne, wines and cigars, etc., to their heart's content. The cornet boys had the honor on this occasion, of dedicating Mr. Ralston's magnificent "music room," which is probably one of the most elegant and costly rooms in the United States. The band returned at a late hour of the night well pleased with their entertainment at Belmont.

THE SAN MATEO CONCERT.—The promenade concert got up at San Mateo, for the benefit of the Episcopal church at that place, came off on last Tuesday evening and proved a grand success. We learn that there was a large crowd present, and that all had a good time. We regretted our inability to be present, but Redwood City was well represented on the occasion. The managers of the Festival have our thanks for complimentary tickets. We have not ascertained the financial result of the Festival, but presume that it was satisfactory to all concerned.

IN LUCK.—The editor of the San Luis Obispo Standard has got a new hat.

General Debility is Nature's Appeal for Help.

Thousands of persons, without any specific ailment, are the victims of languor and lassitude. The unthinking are apt to confound this species of inaction, with laziness; whereas it usually arises from a want of organic energy, for which the subjects of it are no more responsible than the near-sighted are for their defective vision. Such persons, although they may be free from pain, are as truly invalids, and as much in need of medical aid, as if they were tormented with the pangs of acute disease. They require a TONIC and ALTERNATIVE, that will rouse and regulate their torpid organizations. In cases of this kind HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS produce an immediate and most favorable effect. The debilitated and desponding valetudinarian, who feels as if he were but half alive; who shuns company, and has no relish either for business or pleasure, is metamorphosed by a brief course of this most potent vegetable invigorant into quite a different being. The change effected by the BITTERS, in his bodily and mental condition is a surprise to himself and to his friends. He hopes no longer; the active principle of life, which seemed to have died out of him, is re-awakened, and he feels like a new man. Remembering that debility is not only an affliction itself, but an invitation to disease, no time should be lost in recruiting the broken-down system with this choicest and most potent of all TONICS and NERVINES.

LOOK UP FOR THE BIG SHOW

THE GAZETTE.

Arrested for Robbery—A Couple of Nice Boys.

Sheriff Lathrop arrested a couple of young men near the freight depot in this town on last Wednesday morning about 9 o'clock, upon a charge of robbing the house of their former employer—Mr. J. B. Fox, who resides near Saratoga in Santa Clara County.

From Mr. Fox we obtained the following particulars: The two young men are twin brothers—named Wm. Ralph Glenn and Chas. Glenn, and are both deserters from American man-of-war ships. They are about twenty years of age, and one of them had been in the employ of Mr. Fox for a little over a year and the other one about three months. They are from Brooklyn, N.Y., where their parents reside and are highly respected, their father being one of the reporters of the New York Herald.

On last Tuesday, Mr. Fox went to San Jose, and on returning home just at dark found that his house had been robbed of his wife's jewelry, silverware, double-barrel shot-gun, pair of boots, and some other articles of less value. It then being past the time that the boys should have come in from their work and they not making their appearance, Mr. Fox at once suspected them as being the guilty parties.

He took an early start on the next morning for San Jose and started the officers after the scamps, and also sent dispatches to this place and San Francisco and took the train himself and came as far as Belmont where he left the train, and took the freight train back to this place just at the moment the Sheriff and Constable Valliers of Santa Clara, had intercepted the two boys as they came trudging along up the railroad track from the direction of Menlo Park. All of the stolen property was found in their possession when arrested. They were coupled together and marched to the Sheriff's office in the Court House where we briefly interviewed them about as follows: To the tallest—"What is your name?" Answer, William Ralph Glenn. To the short one—"what is your name?" Answer, "Chas. Glenn."

We said "you are not brothers I suppose?" The short one replied: "yes we are twin brothers and don't you think we are a nice pair?" They were both inclined to treat their arrest as a funny thing, and appeared to be worthy candidates for the penitentiary. They were taken to San Jose by the officer from Santa Clara where they will probably get sobered down a little after a few days rusticating in the County jail.

WOMAN SUFFRAGE.—At a meeting held in this town on last Thursday evening, April 14th, for the purpose of organizing a Woman Suffrage Society for San Mateo county, the following officers were elected: Mrs. Mary Kirkpatrick, President; Mrs. Mott of San Mateo, Vice President; Miss Louisa Westbrook, Recording Secretary; Mrs. Mary Westbrook, Treasurer. The next meeting of the society will be held on Saturday, today, 23d, at 2 o'clock p. m., at the residence of Dr. Kirkpatrick. All who are willing to assist in the work of woman's enfranchisement, are requested to be present.

SUPERVISORS.—The Board held an adjourned meeting on Thursday last and after allowing a bill of $30.05 in favor of the Secretary of State for copies of local laws passed at the late session of the Legislature, and a bill of twenty odd dollars of Reimers & Hill, for supplies to the indigent sick, the Board adjourned until the first Monday in June. There was some road matters to come before the Board, but they did not.

THE FIRST.—J. Lewis, the colored barber in this town, has the honor of being the first and only colored citizen whose name has been entered upon the "Great Register," of San Mateo County. Mr. Tate, our County Clerk—although a Democrat, has not seen fit to make so big a fool of himself as did many of the Clerks who took it into their heads that the Constitution of the United States did not amount to a hill of beans in California. We believe, however that all of those smart clerks have weakened, and now make no objection to registering Negroes "or any other man."

EARLY.—Teams have already commenced hauling wood from the Redwoods, to the landing in this town. This is a month—at least, earlier than the same thing has been done in former years.

CEMETERY MEETING.—The annual meeting of the Union Cemetery Association, will be held at the Court-house on next Monday evening at half-past seven o'clock.

I. O. O. F.—The next session of the Grand Lodge of the State of California, will be held in San Francisco commencing on Tuesday, May 10th.

NARROW ESCAPE.—John Huckins, George Littlejohn and one or two more of our Redwood City boys, went over to the coast last week on a sort of hunting and fishing excursion and from the account of their adventures, it would seem that they had rather a perilous trip, and had a very narrow escape from being "eat up alive" by an irate Dutchman who undertook to prevent the boys from camping in the public high way near his premises.

EARLY.—We noticed fields of wheat and barley on T. G. Phelps' ranch near Belmont in this County, which are fully headed out, and from present appearances, are bound to yield a good crop. These fields were sown immediately after the early rains last October.

STOP THAT SHOOTING.—Wouldn't it be a good idea for the town council to pass an ordinance prohibiting the discharge of fire-arms within the town limits.

SCARCELY A DAY OR NIGHT PASSES with out the crack of guns or pistols being heard right in the heart of our town. Shot has occasionally been known to whirl around uncomfortably close to nervous people's ears, and the practice of random shooting ought to be stopped.

RACES.—We are requested by Jack Fleming, to give notice that a horse race is to come off at Amesport, Half-moon Bay, on to-morrow, April 24th. No charge for admission to the track is made at the Half-moon Bay race course.

GREGORY & ORRIN'S Circus performed here last evening, but owing to our paper going to press yesterday evening we are unable to speak of the exhibition. They perform at San Mateo this afternoon and evening.

MARRIED.—In Redwood City, April 8d, by Rev. D. F. Deming, John C. and Anna Kelly. In Pescadero, April 17th, by the Rev. Wm. Gaffney, Geo. A. Gates to Antonette Besse. In Searsville, April 18th, by Rev. Hazard, Thomas Davis to Mrs. Rooney.

HOW SOFTLY ON THE BRUISED HEART.

How softly on the bruised heart
A word of kindness falls,
And to the dry and parched soul
The moistening tear drop calls.
Oh, if they knew who walk the earth
Mid sorrow, grief and pain,
The power a word of kindness hath,
'Twere paradise again.
The weakest and poorest may
The simplest pittance give,
And bid delight to withered hearts
Return again and live;
Oh, what a life if love be lost?
If man's unkind to man—
Or, what the Heaven that waits beyond
This brief and mortal span?
As stars upon the tranquil sea
In mimic glory shine;
So words of kindness in the heart
Reflect the source divine;
Oh, then be kind, who'er thou art,
That breathest mortal breath,
And it shall brighten all thy life,
And sweeten even death.

AWAY WITH CARE.

Away, away with sighs and tears,
Away with care and sorrow;
The storm that wrecks our hopes to-day
May bury grief to-morrow.
It is not meet that man should mourn,
Amid this world of toiling;
For he who looks in Nature's face
Will always find her smiling.
Tis true, Old Winter will return,
To show his different phases;
But Spring we know will come at last,
To strew the field with daisies.
Then come—away with sighs and tears,
Away with care and sorrow;
The storm that wrecks our hopes to-day
May bury grief to-morrow!

INEBRIATE CHICKENS.—We learn that a singular and very amusing accident happened to the chickens of a Mrs. Hamilton, near Petersburg, Tennessee, a few days ago. Her husband bought a bottle of brandy cherries. After eating the cherries, the seeds were thrown out, which the chickens eat greedily. In a short time Mrs. Hamilton found that her chickens were all dead. She told the old negro woman that she might pick the chickens and put the feathers in her bed, which she did readily. After picking off the feathers, she carried out the chickens and threw them away. Night came on; Mrs. Hamilton was sorely grieved at her loss. Sleep soon swept away her troubles. At early dawn she was alarmed at hearing the old chattering crowing loudly and the hens cackling. Judge her surprise when, opening the door and looking out, she saw every hen and rooster, young and old, grave and gay, marching around, eyeing each other with suspicion, many of them entirely naked, while only a few of them had tail and wing feathers. The cherry seeds made them "dead drunk."—Memphis (Tenn.) Appeal.

PAT AND THE MAGISTRATE.—"Please your lordship's honor and glory," replied Tom, "I shot the hare by accident."
"By accident?" remarked Capt. O'Halloran.

"I was firing at a bush, and the hare ran across my aim, all of his own accord."
"The gamekeeper tells a different story," replied his lordship.
"Oh! I don't put faith in what that man says," said Tom, "when he never cares about speaking the truth, anyhow. He told me to other day, your lordship was not so fit to fill the seat of justice as a jackass!"

"Ay, ay," exclaimed Viscount Chillingham, "indeed and what did you say?"
"Please your lordship, I said yes your lordship."

"COY O'LANUS" ON BOYS.—Some things are said in favor of boys; some trades would not live without them. The glass put in men wouldn't have much to do, and putty would be on the decline, is there were no boys to break the windows.

There would be no customers for the castiron peaches and green apples which come early in the season; but for the boys, the doctors wouldn't have so much to do curing the disease of cholera morbus arising therefrom.

Boys can be useful when they have a mind to, can sell newspapers, black boots, hold horses and do chores.

In printing offices boys are known as devils—printers have a plain way of speaking.

Boys individually are better than boys collectively.

If there were only one boy in the world, I think he would be a good boy; it generally takes two boys to get up any mischief.

Have one boy in a store and you can make him useful. Hire a second boy and their will be chiefly devoted to chasing one another over the counter and firing the dust brush and directory at each other's head.

A boy begins to be a nuisance when he is eight years old. How soon he grows out of it depends on circumstances. Some never do.

It is questionable whether a boy leads up an enjoyable existence. They take a great deal of fun at other people's expense, but they have most always got grievances. They would like to have their own way a little more, and a pretty way it would be.

Give a boy a chance in all occupations in life, and the chances are that he would prefer either to be a Robinson Crusoe on a desolate island, or a captain of a band of robbers such as he has read about, and seriously thinks of going into one or the other of these desirable occupations when he gets to be a man. He has great respect for a stage driver or a captain of a canal boat—there is an idea of command in these positions that takes his ideas. His ideas of being is, having plenty of money, doing what you please, and being able to chew and smoke tobacco without getting sick over it.

Somebody wrote a song "Would I were a boy again." Those who had the bringing up of him are not likely to have the same sentiment. Raising a boy once is as much as anybody wants to undergo, and fortunately, when they grow up, they have children of their own to afflict them.

NOT POSTED IN HISTORY.—A youthful applicant for a certificate to teach school presented himself before the Superintendent of Schools, Committee of a town in Maine, and after having answered correctly several questions in mathematics, he was asked—

"In what year did Columbus discover America?"

The young man paused, and then scratched his head and replied:

"Well Mister, you have got me now!"

"Was it before or after Christ?" continued the committee man. The youth spent a moment in thought, and then raising his huge fist and striking it upon the desk, exclaimed:

"You have got me again, by thunder?" The certificate was not granted.

Traveler—"That's what my friends say."

Traveler—"That's what the doctor tells me."

Official (indignantly)—"But you shan't smoke sir!"

Traveler—"Ah! that's what my wife says."
